Lachha Paratha

Lachha Paratha is a popular Indian flatbread known for its layered and flaky texture. The paratha is made by rolling and folding the dough multiple times, creating the signature layers. Lachha Paratha is often served with various curries, lentils, or vegetables, and is a staple in many North Indian households.

Idli

Idlis, steamed rice cakes, are traditionally served on a banana leaf in South Indian cuisine. This eco-friendly practice is not only visually appealing but also adds a subtle flavor to the Idlis. Serving Idlis on banana leaves is a common practice in many South Indian restaurants and households.
